

Yetter Opposes Police Changes In Mt. Pocono

(Special To The Daily Record)
HARRISBURG—Rep. Van D. Yetter (D-Monroe) voiced strong criticism of plans to close the State Police barracks at Mount Pocono this week before the House of Representatives.

In comments delivered in the House, Yetter also urged that State Police troopers and officers be given "decent pay in line with the work they are doing for the citizens of this Commonwealth."

"We need more state policemen, not less," Yetter said. "And the force needs to be better paid with better working conditions. Gov. Lawrence has recommended that the State Police force be increased. I believe that anyone who is interested in the program for highway safety or in the protection of Pennsylvania citizens should be convinced, by now, that an increased police force is a necessity."

"Yetter then challenged the 'common sense' of a decision by State Police Commissioner Frank McCortney to close the police sub-station at Mount Pocono."

"I do not think the Commissioner has given his decision in this case with due respect for the facts," Yetter said. "He (Col. McCortney) has said that he thinks the closing will improve police service for Monroe County."

"I'd like to know just how the Commissioner feels transferring three troopers out of the county could possibly improve State Police service. The barracks in Monroe County are already hard-pressed for manpower and I think they all do right more than enough to do right away."

Van D. Yetter

now. If anything, my county needs more troopers instead of less," Yetter said.

"It looks to me as if the Legislature and the Administration are going to have to take some action toward improving working conditions and pay for all our State Police enlisted men and officers," Yetter said. "I think we should do it right away."

President Supports Nixon On Discussion In Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said Wednesday Vice President Richard M. Nixon has every right to talk over with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev the possibility of visiting this country but has no authority to invite him here.

Eisenhower said Nixon, now visiting the Soviet Union himself, has every right to listen to confirm at a news conference and converse and discuss such a visit with the Soviet Premier.

Thus the President appeared to confirm at a news conference that Nixon had talked with Khrushchev about coming to the United States sometime. But it is Eisenhower who will determine when and whether an invitation will be issued.

Little Encouragement
The President did little to encourage a Khrushchev visit now. Yet he is known to feel that at the proper time and under the right conditions a personal meeting between himself and the Soviet Premier might be desirable.

Eisenhower regards Khrushchev as shrewd but no wise, as erratic but not reckless or irresponsible. And he thinks it is a splendid idea if Khrushchev and other top Soviet officials could come to this country sometime to see what this nation has, how the people live, and how much the United States has to fight for if necessary.

Mostly Eisenhower was even-tempered, laughing and joshing a bit.

Ministers Set Final Geneva Date

Both Sides Agree On Decision

GENEVA (AP) — West and East decided Wednesday to halt the foreign ministers' conference by next Wednesday even if they fail to find a way out of the Berlin crisis. They may recess or they may break off the talks entirely.

Nobody in town was willing to predict that there would be agreement by next Wednesday. Even the normally optimistic British were portrayed as depressed over the prospects.

"There is no evidence to indicate there is new hope for a Berlin settlement," Andrew H. Berding, U.S. assistant secretary of state, told reporters.

Maurice Couve de Murville, the French foreign minister, told the French Cabinet in Paris: "The results are not encouraging, and it is not possible to be optimistic concerning the results of the conference."

Agreement
The Wednesday ending was agreed upon after U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter had informed Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Herter had to leave Geneva by next Thursday because of commitments elsewhere.

Berding said Gromyko did not resist the idea that the conference must be wound up in a week. The two men agreed during a nearly four-hour private talk that the Big Four would make every effort during the next week to narrow the profound differences still separating East and West.

The West insists on a signed agreement guaranteeing its war rights in West Berlin, 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain. At the last minute, the Western Big Three offered to limit their West Berlin garrisons to 11,000 men and to join the Communists in checking propaganda in both East and West Berlin.

Gromyko has proposed an 18-months truce during which East and West Germany would negotiate as equals on unification. After that, the Big Four would take up the problem for an unspecified period if the Germans could not agree among themselves. But the Soviet Union insists the Allies must get out of Berlin and wants the size of the garrisons reduced now.

'Charge It' Bus Rides In Lehigh Valley

ALLENTOWN (AP) — Starting Saturday, any responsible citizen of this Lehigh Valley area can grab a bus ride by flashing a card any saying "Charge it."

A. H. Williams, president of the Lehigh Valley Transit Company, announced Wednesday a credit card plan which will be called "Charge-a-Fare." He said most businesses today are operated on a credit basis and he believes the credit convenience to passengers might help the transit problem.

No charge will be made for credit cards, the company said. Passengers may apply for any one of three types of cards—for single zone rides at basic fares, for multimile rides on single routes or for multimile commutation rides for either single zones or interzones.

Bookkeeping Problems
Williams said he realized the plan will create new bookkeeping problems for the company but he expects sufficient increase in the accounting costs.

The credit cards have 20 punches on them. At the end of the month the rider is billed for the entire card. If he has used it only part, he can send in $4 and use the remainder or he can send in payment for the number of punches and the card.

Many of Bethlehem Steel Company's 15,000 workers use the buses. With the steel workers on strike, the transit company said it believes the credit plan will help not only it but the idle workers.

Richards Bows Out Today

(Special To The Daily Record)
HARRISBURG — Maj. Gen. George Richards, Deputy Secretary of Highways, ends his tour of duty with the State Highway Department today after four years and seven months service.

In a letter to Highways Secretary Park H. Martin, Gen. Richards set forth his resignation on July 13.

Martin accepted the resignation in a letter dated July 14. Prior to this exchange Gen. Richards' resignation was reported by the Highway Department to the press. When contacted by the press Gen. Richards said he was "unaware" any resignation had been made.

Capital Hill sources disclosed that Highway Department officials had "been after" Gen. Richards even before Gov. Lawrence took office and during the administration's cabinet formation days.

His appointment as Deputy Secretary of Highways at the start of the Leader administration came about through the intercession of Rep. Francis E. Walter, dean of Pennsylvania's Congressmen and a top ranking member of the House. Apparently forces within the Department held the upper hand, despite the prominence of Rep. Walter. Capital Hill sources said here yesterday.

Gen. Richards, a Democrat, was a classmate of President Eisenhower at West Point. He had achieved top honors as a military engineer and as a fiscal authority having directed military budget operations before Congress during World War II. He held many awards for distinguished service in directing major post-war affairs in Europe.

After he became Deputy Secretary of Highways he organized the immediate and responsive action after the 1955 flood Diane ripped highways and bridges in Pennsylvania. Shortly thereafter, however, this early achievement bogged down, especially in the Pocono Mountains area. Competent observers said yesterday in Harrisburg that Richards' recommendations for highway recovery were ignored "with the recovery of the politicians' initial flood shock."

He had also submitted plans for a comprehensive five-year highway construction and improvement plan, based on a spend-as-you-go fiscal policy which observers here said "was not only ignored, but found offensive in some channels."

Richards is being succeeded by Arthur P. Logan, former business manager of the Erie School District.

It is understood that Gen. Richards is considering a number of business ventures in

Gen. George Richards which he will be owner-director of activities.

Toe-To-Toe Exchanges Mark Clashes

SVERDLOVSK, Soviet Union (AP) — Hecklers loaded with unfriendly questions and arguments stalked Vice President Richard M. Nixon Wednesday.

The vice president in toe-to-toe exchanges told his hecklers to get their government to stop jamming American broadcasts so they would know the truth. Another time he asked why Soviet troops are in Poland, Hungary, and East Germany.

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of President Eisenhower, and Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, the atomic submarine expert, helped Nixon bat down criticisms of American policy.

Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press aide, broadly hinted that the vice president thinks the Soviet government has primed trusted agents with hostile questions and planted them among otherwise friendly crowds.

"The vice president has noticed there's a tremendous similarity in questions as he's gone along," said Klein. "These people wait for him either at entrances or exits where they will be sure to be in his path."

Warm Contact
The heckling began Wednesday morning at Novosibirsk, 900 miles east of here, where the vice president's Soviet tour had brought several examples of warm contact with the Soviet people Tuesday.

Flying Wednesday to this booming center in the eastern Urals, noted for its heavy industry and armament mills, Nixon found a big but silent crowd.

Just outside a steel mill Nixon got into a discussion with the plant superintendent, Nikolai Stravtsev.

"You are jamming Western radio broadcasts," Nixon told Stravtsev. "You don't know the truth."

"What you present is not ideas but dirty slanders," Stravtsev declared.

"You can stick to your own ideas," Nixon continued, "but you ought to have the right to choose what you hear and read. Why must you let somebody else tell you what you must hear?"

"I am surprised that a bright man like you should stick to such an outmoded system," Stravtsev retorted.

Nixon, whose patience had worn thin after answering seemingly planted questions at several points, wound up the unexpected debate by shaking hands with the steel mill superintendent. He went on to visit other parts of the mill, crowded with American and West German machinery.

In Novosibirsk, Nixon was quizzed by three questioners, whose names, ages and occupations Soviet authorities were ready to supply.

While the vice president stood on top of an unfinished hydroelectric dam, surrounded by a few hundred workmen, officials and newsmen, Grigory Belousov Fedorov, 30, an electrician, began interrupting with questions. In rapid-fire Russian, translated for Nixon, he said the Soviet Union has no military bases outside its borders, but the United States has many in foreign countries.

"Why is that, I'd like to know," shouted Fedorov.

Agreement
"When we both agree on a disarmament proposal with adequate inspection then we can take up the question of bases," Nixon said. "Now I'd like to ask you a question."

"I'm not satisfied with your answer," Fedorov interjected.

"In East Germany, Poland and Hungary, the U.S.S.R. has troops," Nixon went on in a loud voice. "Why are your troops in those countries? Is Poland your country? Why do you keep troops there?"

But Fedorov held that "we have no Soviet troops there."

Then poking his finger close to Nixon's chest, the electrician said Soviet troops are there because American and Western troops are in Germany.

Smiling, Nixon shook his head and said: "You see, you always have a reason." Nixon observed that workers in all countries should be interested in foreign policy.

Fedorov shouted: "We know Mr. Khrushchev's policy, and we are behind it." He said the Soviet Union will take measures to "liquidate" American bases in foreign countries.

'Greatest Thrill'

John Marches Home In Triumph

By Bob Clark
"IT WAS the greatest thrill of my life," said Mrs. Carl Muller, mother of Johnny Muller, the 12-year-old boy who hit the two-run home Tuesday night to give Stroudsburg Little League All-Stars a comeback 3-2 victory over Northeast's Stars, at Freeman.

"I was unable to get to the game but I heard it blow-by-blow on the radio," Mrs. Muller recalled. "And when Johnny hit the ball out of the ball park I could hardly move or speak. In fact I was speechless and motionless for a moment," she remarked.

Mrs. Muller, mother of four daughters plus Johnny, made it a point that she was "ever so happy for the team and for managers Ray Davies and Glen Bisbing."

"Those two men have done a tremendous job and I know it because I hear Johnny daily laud the pair," Mrs. Muller pin-pointed. Mrs. Muller's husband also was unable to make the game (however the husband and wife have seen many games this year including the State Belt and Pen Argyll playoff tilts) because he had to be at work in Connecticut.

But when the elder Muller left he patted young Johnny on the head and said, "Hit 'em high and hard, son."

Johnny, a student in the seventh grade at St. Matthew's school, was more or less nonchalant about his four-ply wallop which gave Stroudsburg the ev-eted victory. "We all want to win and we all play to win. His attitude assured hand clappers that if he didn't do it possibly someone else on the team would."

Mrs. Muller also made this known when describing that she often wondered how persons felt when they see their boys names in headlines (like Johnny in Wednesday's Daily Record).

"Of course it sent a wonderful feeling through me but still in all I was so happy for all the boys," she noted.

Committee Votes To Slow Highway Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee voted Wednesday to slow up the big interstate highway program rather than raise gasoline taxes.

The committee plan would stretch out building of the 40-billion-dollar superhighway network four years beyond its presently scheduled 1972 completion date. This would mean a drastic reduction in federal highway funds allocated to the states, to accord with the slower pace. It would force widespread revision of state highway building plans now scheduled for the future.

President Eisenhower had asked for an increase in the federal gasoline tax to 4 1/2 cents from 3 cents a gallon, to meet the situation. He said anything else would not be realistic, and administration spokesmen argued that a special bond issue would be inflationary.

Vote Marginal
But the committee, by a 15-10 vote, approved a highway financing plan calling for the issuance of a billion dollars of revenue bonds against future highway-user tax receipts coming into the highway trust fund. The bonds thus would not be charged against the public debt. They would be issued before June 30, 1961, and would be repayable within five years.

The bonds would be retired by diverting one-fifth of the 10 per cent manufacturers excise tax on new automobiles to the highway trust fund for four years starting July 1, 1961. This would represent about 250 million dollars a year. The money now goes into the government's general revenues.

The financial crisis in the highway building program stems from a construction speedup voted by Congress last year as an anti-recession move.

The trust fund—which gets its money from fuel, tire and other motoring taxes—faces a half-billion-dollar deficit by next spring and a cumulative deficit of 1 1/2 billion dollars in the three fiscal years 1960-62 unless additional funds are provided or construction is slowed.

Queen Elizabeth Crashes Into American Freighter

NEW YORK (AP) — The luxury liner Queen Elizabeth, largest in the world, collided with a freighter in fog Wednesday in New York Harbor. There were no injuries aboard either vessel, although more than 2,000 lives were momentarily endangered.

The freighter American Hunter, of the United States Lines, stove a hole in the hull of the 83,000-ton Elizabeth above the water line.

Bow Indentation
With 1,959 passengers aboard, the magnificent queen of Britain's merchant fleet was forced to return to her Hudson River berth for repairs. She was only about 90 minutes out of Pier 90, en route to Europe, when the collision occurred at 3:29 p.m. EDT.

Serrill To Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Theodore A. Serrill Wednesday announced his resignation, effective No. 1, as executive director of the Washington, D. C. Publishers Assn.

The American Hunter, 10,460 tons, suffered a two-foot indentation in her bow, also above the waterline.

Both ships were in pilot waters, where trained harbor pilots direct their movements. And the Elizabeth had radar, which is supposed to protect it against mishaps in fog or darkness.

There was no immediate explanation for the collision.

Republicans Show Power In Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) — Hawaii's many races overwhelmingly chose a one-armed Japanese-American war hero as congressman; sent a rags-to-riches Chinese-American to the U.S. Senate; and gave underdog Republicans surprise victories Tuesday in the islands' first election as the nation's 50th state.

William F. Quinn, Eisenhower appointee as territorial governor, was kept on as the state's first elected governor.

A Republican won one of the two U.S. Senate seats.

A Republican won as lieutenant governor.

And Republicans wrested control of the State Senate from the Democrats.

But Democrats won the lone House seat in Congress; took one of the U.S. Senate seats and retained control of the State House. Democrats had won consistently in the islands since 1954.

Ike Pleased

In Washington, President Eisenhower expressed pleasure over the Republican show of strength but voiced particular satisfaction that the islands chose Hawaiians of Chinese, Japanese and native extraction. He called it a fine example of democracy in operation.

Daniel K. Inouye, 54-year-old, born of island parents, made the most impressive showing for the Democrats. Inouye, who lost his right arm in a "Go For Broke" Japanese-American regiment in World War II, won the lone U.S. House seat by 111,731 to 51,016 over Republican Charles K. Silva, a dentist.

Republican Hiram L. Fong, 52, a rags-to-riches millionaire, became the first Chinese-American ever to be sent to the U.S. Senate. He defeated Connecticut-born Frank F. Fasi, the Democrat, 83,917-77,700.

Fong, the son of an itinerant cane sugar worker, heads a 12-million-dollar loan corporation.

The other Senate seat was won by Oren E. Long, 70, a Democratic veteran politician and former governor of Hawaii. He defeated Republican Wilfred C. Tsukiyama, 83,713-79,028.

Gov. Quinn, 40-year-old Republican called "wonderful, exhilarating, glorious" his 85,997-82,052 win over Democrat John A. Burns, Hawaii's last territorial delegate to Congress.

The total turnout of 165,472 voters amounted to 91 per cent of the 183,121 registrants. Inouye made island history by being the first island office seeker ever to draw more than 100,000 votes.

New Sparks Added To Steel Dispute

NEW YORK (AP) — High mid-year profits being run up on the steel company cash registers Wednesday added new sparks to the economic clash behind the steel strike.

But it appeared to have no immediate effect in breaking the rigid deadlock that has paralyzed the industry for the last 15 days.

President Eisenhower, at his news conference in Washington, again declined to take sides in the dispute. As for steel profits, he said, too many factors were involved to draw any conclusions about them or their relation to wages.

You can't make judgments on isolated facts, he said, without seeming to favor one side or the other, and he's not going to do that while negotiations are going on.

Record Earnings

With most steel companies so far reporting record earnings for the first six months of 1959, the United Steelworkers of America claimed this punctured industry arguments that wage boosts would force inflationary price rises.

But steel executives stuck to their position against more wages, saying profits were not excessive, and that special conditions brought the high level about.

Federal mediators met Wednesday with union negotiators, and were scheduled to meet with industry leaders Thursday, but there was no indication of any concessions either way.

Republic Steel, the nation's third-largest producer, joined the lists of those reporting record earnings. Its net income for the first half of 1959 was $67,089,717, almost triple its $23,904,602 net income for the first six months of last year, and higher than any previous six-month net in the history of the corporation. Republic also reported records in production and sales.

Another major steel firm, Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second-largest producer, was scheduled to report its first half year's earnings Thursday.

Like the No. 1 producer, U.S. Steel and other companies, Bethlehem was expected to show a record profit.

Committee Spurns Ike's Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee Wednesday spurned President Eisenhower's proposal for a commission to keep racial or religious bias out of employment on federal contracts.

However, the House Judiciary Committee approved a two-year extension of the Civil Rights Commission which has the job of investigating complaints of voting rights breaches.

Also accepted by the House group was an Eisenhower proposal aimed at strengthening the hand of the Justice Department in safeguarding voting rights.

Jehovah's Witnesses From Area To Attend Circuit Assembly At Leighton Fairground

FORTY-FIVE delegates besides many others of good-will from the East Stroudsburg congregation of Jehovah's witnesses made final plans to attend the circuit assembly to be held at the Leighton Fairgrounds, tomorrow to Sunday. Stephen Bortlik, presiding minister, who will head the delegation, announced yesterday that more than 2,000 ministers are expected to attend. Bortlik described this assembly as one of extreme importance, as it builds up Christians against the onslaughts of Communist and rising world delinquency. He said, "Skilled ministers require advance training to teach others the Divine Will and living Bible principles in these critical times. Therefore," he continued, "the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, sponsors of this assembly, has chosen the theme, 'Being a Teacher of the Good News' and will jointly aid local ministers to improve their preaching and teaching to others and those congregated with the local group."

According to Bortlik, the featured speaker appearing daily on the program and who will give the address of welcome tomorrow at 7 p. m. is Angelo A. Catanzaro, district minister of Brooklyn, New York, headquarters and Paul R. Ruggles, circuit supervisor. Catanzaro will deliver the principal address, publicized throughout this section by the ministers, on Sunday at 3 p. m.

Tape Doesn't Tell All

By William A. Doyle
International Investment
Analyst

Q. I have done a lot of reading in order to learn how to interpret the activities of the stock market by watching the ticker tape. But I am still a little vague about the fine points of tape watching.

A. Maybe the ticker tape (on which all transactions on the floor of the stock exchange are transcribed to brokerage houses and other offices around the country) does "tell all."

But it hasn't told me. Tape-watchers are a special breed of cat. They spend the entire business day sitting in brokerage offices—with their eyes fixed on the ticker tape. If you want to do that, you shouldn't expect to be successful on a part-time basis—such as dropping into the brokerage office during your lunch hour.

Tape-watchers claim they can read all kinds of things off the tape. They are mostly speculators who hope to make a fast profit as a result of their interpretations of what the tape "tells them." And some of the biggest arguments are between tape-watching addicts with different theories over what the tape is "saying."

Now it's easy enough to see when a stock is "under" quite a bit of accumulation. In simple English, that means that there is a lot of William A. Doyle buying of the stock.

Outside of that, for most people, the only things the tape tells are the price and trading activity of individual stocks.

The second quotation in your question leaves me completely blank. Before you think I'm a dunce, let me explain that many people in the financial district hardly ever look at the ticker tape. I know one man who retired recently after a very successful career in Wall Street. He confides that, in over 50 years, he spent "less than three or four hours" watching the tape.

Q. I am retired, own my home, have reasonable income and fair income. I have some money to invest but feel I am too far along in years to worry about long-range growth in common stocks. Do you feel that I would be wiser to put my money in preferred stocks yielding 5 percent or better a year in dividends.

A. Yes, as long as the only thing you want from your investment is income. In the kind of a market we have these days (with so much of the buying demand centered in common stocks) it is possible to buy many good grade preferred stocks at relatively low prices.

A drop in price in preferreds, or any other fixed-income security, means an increase in the yield. For instance, a $100 par value preferred stock, with a 4 percent dividend, pays $4 a year. If you buy the stock at $100 a share, your yield is 4 percent. If you buy the same preferred stock at $80 a share, you will still receive $4 a year dividend and your yield will be 5 percent.

The dividends on preferred stock are considered a safe source of income—assuming, of course, that the company in which you buy preferred stock is in decent financial condition.

But it cannot be stressed too often that straight preferred stocks do not offer growth possibilities. And, if the present trend in the stock market continues, the prices of preferred stocks may fall even lower.

Putting all your money in fixed-income securities, such as preferreds, can be dangerous in the inflationary era.

Act Against Train Cuts

Slightly more than three months remain for Monroe County to act against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad and its plan to cut two trains off the regular run between Hoboken and the west.

Both of the trains scheduled to be cut by the railroad stop at East Stroudsburg. One of the trains runs from Binghamton to Hoboken in the morning, while the other is an afternoon train traveling from Hoboken to Buffalo.

The trains are so arranged that they have made a perfect pattern for businessmen in the Stroudsburgs and Monroe County. They afford a perfect means of arriving in New York during the morning hours and returning home late in the afternoon.

Each of the trains carries mail, express and parcel post in addition to passengers. Each is important to the economy of Monroe County.

The absence of these two trains could hamper our drive for new industry. The lack of these two means of transportation could cut into our resort business. If the railroad is successful in having these two trains removed, our employment record will take an even further beating.

Every business and factory in Monroe County is dependent on the DL&W for one reason or another.

Hazleton recently proved that protests leveled in the right direction can do wonders. Protests from this area forced the Lehigh Valley Railroad to retain one train running between Hazleton and Lehigh, after the railroad had cut off all of its passenger service.

It is now time for our Chamber of Commerce, Vacation Bureau, other resort organizations, Monroe County Commissioners, Stroudsburg Businessmen, East Stroudsburg Businessmen, Central Labor Union, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the councils of Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, Delaware Water Gap and Mount Pocono, not to mention supervisors of our townships, to lodge their protests.

Write to the Interstate Commerce Commission, Pennsylvania Utility Commission and to the DL&W, at Hoboken.

The ICC invoked the present four months delay. The railroad wanted to curtail the two trains as of last Monday.

Protest now—not tomorrow.

Keep our trains running—we need them.

That's the excess of money the Government spent that it didn't have.

The Pennsylvania Story

No 'Sensational Exposés'

Harrisburg — If the Lawrence Administration can possibly sidestep it, there will be no sensational exposés during the tenure of Governor David L. Lawrence — at least not at the expense of Pennsylvania Democrats.

This is the general consensus of opinion among top Administration aides on Capitol Hill — and unquestionably is a decided contrast to the "modus operandi" in this respect of the preceding Democratic Leader Administration.

At the same time gubernatorial aides point out that Governor Lawrence made it clear in the early days of his Administration that he would not hesitate to knock out and bring to light any irregularities in governmental operations that might come to his attention.

However there is a difference between what might be termed "active muck-raking" and "passive muck-raking."

In the former case every possible advantage is taken to "exploit" a wrong-doing, regardless of degree of severity and regardless of whom it affects, politically or otherwise.

In the latter category fall those development that are just that — developments, or mis-cues and mis-steps, that in the normal process are handled and prosecuted without exceptional and politically-aggressive publicity other than developed by the case itself.

It is this pattern that is now being followed and is expected to be followed by the peace-loving and non-bombastic Administration of Governor Lawrence. It does not mean tolerance of wrong-doing in government; it means handling such cases without an attempt to capitalize politically on the development.

This in itself is an interesting study in contrasts — in contrast with developments during the preceding Democratic Administration of Governor Leader.

It doesn't require a long-memorized taxpayer to recall that during the Leader Administration there was an almost continuous uproar on Capitol Hill as the Administration took advantage — publicitywise — of virtually every development along these lines, whether it affected the Administration directly or not.

Perhaps the most blatant illustration of this strategy can be found in the highway scandal exposure where the Democratic Administration lowered the boom on fellow Democratic state employees at the time merely suspected of being guilty of fraud.

None will dispute the merit of such actions from a public service standpoint and the proper carrying out of a governmental function.

What is at dispute however — within the political fraternity, that is — is the use of such development as an aggressive publicity vehicle, which oftentimes backfires on the political organization concerned.

Standard operating procedure during the Lawrence Administration, it is understood, will be to let these matters take due legal course without attempt to capitalize politically through aggressive publicity bluffs.

Most are convinced the "aggressive publicity" act didn't work out too well for Democrats during the Leader Administration. Mr. Leader lost his U.S. senatorial bid in November and Mr. Lawrence squeaked into the gubernatorial chair by a piddling 76,083 votes.

Whether this facet of the Leader Administration policy had anything to do with it, no one knows for sure of course. In any event, the cautious Lawrence Administration doesn't intend to take any chances in this direction.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Nixon Speaks Up

Vice President Nixon's running debate with Nikita Khrushchev may or may not have pleased the trained diplomats of Western countries but it was an excellent conversation by two men who knew what they were talking about and dared to say what they had to say in plain, everyday language which anyone could understand and all the world could hear.

What Khrushchev undoubtedly tried to do was to give the impression to the Russians and who ever else was listening in that he could talk down the Vice President of the United States. It might have worked with a less independent personality than Dick Nixon who recognizes a barnstormer when he sees one and who would not let him get away with it. Khrushchev tried to filibuster the conversation so that he would get in his licks while smothering the words of the American. Nixon called him — as the saying goes — and although Scotty Reston, the correspondent of "The New York Times," thought it was all pretty bad manners, the likelihood is that when Nixon and Khrushchev sat down in private, each understood the other better. And that is precisely what happened.

When Khrushchev got through boasting of Soviet Russia's prowess, Nixon told him:

"There is not a day in the United States when we cannot read what you say. When Kozlov was speaking in California about peace, you were talking here in somewhat different terms. This was reported extensively in the American press. Never make a statement here if you don't want it to be read in the United States. I can promise you every word you say will be translated into English."

Khrushchev said that he doubted it, but he really believed Nixon because the Russians watch the American press and they know what an enormous coverage Khrushchev gets. In fact, Americans are now going overboard in their interest in everything Russian, including the unimportant and the fraudulent. This summer it has been so stylish to go to Russia that all those who follow the fashions went.

Meanwhile, at the American fair at Moscow, books were being withdrawn by order of Soviet Russia. While Khrushchev was boasting of the accomplishments of his country, his government was censoring American books exhibited at the American fair.

For instance, what realistic objection can there be to the "World Almanac," a compendium of statistical data, published each year and generally accepted? Why would the Russian book censor object to such a volume? Or what is wrong with the other 250 volumes? For instance "A Treasury of Great Russian Short Stories," edited by Avram Yarmolinsky — what objection can there be to this excellent anthology of Russian literature? Or to Sir Bernard Pares' "A History of Russia," which, in my opinion, is so favorable to Russia that I suspected it of being pro-Communist and once so told the author? Or to "Great Ages and Ideas of the Jewish People," edited by Leo W. Schwartz, as non-political a book as can be written and dealing with matters that cannot possibly destroy the Soviet state, except that they have reference to God.

What element of fear compels a censor to pick out such books as these — and to keep them from the sight of their own people? It must be fear — fear that if ever the truth were known to them, they would turn on their masters.

Richard Nixon's first encounter with Khrushchev was all to the good. They debated freely and in public and every word counted. It was a catch-as-catch-can debate. A lesser man than Nixon would have been overwhelmed by Khrushchev's bad manners. Reston reported editorially:

"What the world of traditional diplomacy in London and Paris thinks of this exhibition of diplomacy by the two most powerful nations in the world is not hard to imagine, but it would probably be wrong to assume that Mr. Khrushchev takes it all too seriously."

Quite so. Nor should the United States worry about what London or Paris thinks of all this. It is enough that Khrushchev has learned that a capitalist lawyer can give as well a stake in a debate.

Harness Racing At Honesdale

Harness racing will be better than ever this year at the annual Wayne County Fair which begins near on Sept. 15.

The historic half-mile dirt track has been given a new surface making it one of the best in the New York-Penn fair circuit.

Trotting and pacing events are scheduled for the afternoons of Sept. 16, 17 and 18 with some of the best horses in the East already entered. Advance indications are that at least 100 horses will be on hand for the three-day program.

To make the track ready for this year's events, the fair association has placed 1,500 cubic yards of new fill from the grandstand stretch to the quarter pole near the main entrance to the fair grounds. This will be covered with a topping of fine loam mixed with clay and rock dust.

Although it wasn't evident to most fair-goers, a survey showed that the straightaway in front of the grandstand was three feet, seven inches lower than the intended level. This situation has now been corrected.

The vast improvement project was carried out by volunteer labor during an old-fashioned Sunday work bee which was organized by Lynn Highhouse, a fair director. Heavy construction equipment was donated by several contractors.

To straighten their request to the President, the eight lawmakers decided to ask 35 others to sign it. High on this list was Saylor.

While personally favorable, he determined to first check with Lewis.

The miner chief exploded with a roar of disapproval. "If I didn't know you," thundered Lewis, "I wouldn't believe you. Why this means Dave McDonald is so anxious to end the strike that he's willing to invoke the Taft-Hartley law to do it. If that's so, then he has nothing to strike for. This thing would be a glaring admission of weakness. I'm going to talk to him right away, and find out what it's all about."

This blast was the beginning of the end. An hour later the peace plan had been thoroughly demolished.

Torpedoing It — Jarred by Lewis' outburst, Saylor shot off a telegram to McDonald pointing out that the only way the President could appoint a fact-finding board was to invoke the Taft-Hartley law and to ask, "Do you want him to do that?"

Saylor got a speedy reply — through Representative Holland.

McDonald telephoned Holland and strongly "advised" him to drop the proposed telegram to the President. Also to make sure that contemplated press releases about the matter also were killed.

"By all means make certain of this," stressed McDonald. Immediately, Holland and his staff got busy. All signers of the telegram were hurriedly informed it was being cancelled "because of late developments in the situation."

This abrupt switch was most disconcerting to some of them. Representative Donald Irwin (D., Conn.), who had already informed friends of it, had to rush out an explanation. "Do not publish my message. Am advised that late developments originating in New York have caused sponsoring Republicans and Democratic congressmen to withhold the telegram they had planned to send to the President to name a fact-finding board to ferret out the 'true facts' involved in the steel shut-down."

The seven other originators of the telegram that Lewis so speedily and effectively torpedoed are:

Representatives Robert Corbett (R., Pa.), Frank Clark (D., Pa.), John Dent (D., Pa.), Francis Walter (D., Pa.), Frank Kowalski (D., Conn.), Ray Madden (D., Ind.) and John Lesinski (D., Mich.).

In the statement to colleagues, seeking their signatures, the group made the following points:

"This is being done on a strictly non-partisan basis. . . We raise no political issues at which the President could take offense. Yesterday he designated Labor Secretary Mitchell to collect and secure the facts for him. However, this will not send the steel workers back to work immediately as would the appointing of a fact-finding board."

"It is our intention to send this to the press on Friday for immediate release. We would suggest that you make your own release to your local papers."

The shelved telegram to the President emphasized the need for him to act:

"Only by your appointing a 'fact-finding board' will the true facts be learned and the judging of those facts must be made in a semi-judicial manner. If there is no impartial tribunal to find the facts, there can be no such thing as an 'enlightened public opinion' and this strike will become a test of power in a whirl of propaganda and prejudice."

"We live in a time when the vital industries and services of the nation are in the hands of giant companies and giant unions. And we cannot entrust the interests of the nation to a power struggle between unions and companies under the guise of 'free bargaining'."

"We appeal to you, Mr. President, to step in now and prevent this situation from developing into a national economic emergency."

Diplomatic Pouch — President Eisenhower and Panama's President de la Guardia have exchanged more correspondence on providing the latter's country with more revenue from the Canal without raising the tolls. The U.S. is opposed to higher rates, but Panama is insisting on additional income.

Two of President de Gaulle's top cabinet members are going to Brazil in the Fall. Minister of State Andre Malraux, one of France's famed authors, and Finance Minister Antoine Pinay have accepted invitations to make a state visit.

Breakdown Made In East Stroudsburg Sewer Program Cost

Individual Tax Burden To Be $66

EAST Stroudsburg's $2,800,000 sewer program will bring the annual tax burden of each citizen to $66, a representative of Blair and Co., Inc., Philadelphia bond consultants, told the borough's municipal authority last night.

Sewer and water rental, on a per capita basis, will be $20 annually, according to the firm's breakdown.

Blair and Co. said the annual $66 tax burden compares favorably with nearby communities of similar size. It listed per capita annual burdens of $69 for Stroudsburg, $77 for Honesdale, $64 for southwest Delaware County, $131 for Whitmarsh Township in Montgomery County, $71 for Perkasie in Bucks County and $107 for Morrisville in Bucks County.

In an accompanying letter, the firm wrote:

"It is our opinion that this project can be successfully financed and the charges are in line with similar communities in this area and can be met without unreasonable burden by the local home owner."

"We further believe that this permanent improvement is necessary and will result in improvement in value to the new user and be a real asset to the borough of East Stroudsburg."

Representatives of Albright and Friel, consulting engineers, reported earlier that they expect to have plans and specifications for the sewer system complete by Sept. 28.

Additional Work

A spokesman for the company pointed out that additional work in updating the plans has resulted from construction of the Stroudsburg Thruway and the inter-borough bridge and proposed flood control projects. He estimated the plans and specifications are 85 percent complete at this time.

It is estimated 30 days will be necessary after the plans are delivered to permit contractors to inspect them before bids can be asked.

Blair and Co. broke the $2,800,000 figure down into $1,500 for preliminary expenses; $15,000 for lands and rights-of-way; construction costs of $2,193,000, including $970,000 for assessable sewers, $462,000 for non-assessable sewers and $761,000 for sewer treatment works; $131,000 for engineering and inspection; $15,000 for assessment plans and list; $40,000 legal financing and administration; $10,000, initial operating expenses; $56,000 bond discount; $114,500, contingencies, and $224,000, interest during construction.

The $66 for each taxpayer is based on a population of 7,500 persons, a 1959 market value for real estate of $17,123,000 and a 1959 assessed valuation of $5,993,000.

Total debt for the borough, including the $2,800,000 figure, is estimated at $4,560,000, which breaks down to $668 per person on a per capita basis.

Vacationer Hospitalized By Razor

PROMISED LAND — Yesterday was a hot enough day to make many heads swim.

William Rinkenberg, 73, vacationing with his family in a cottage on North Shore Road, Promise Land, took a nap in the afternoon.

When he woke up, he got out of bed to shave himself. He began stropping his straight razor. He dropped it on the floor. Suddenly he fell on the razor.

Hospitalized — Dr. Frank Urdel, Newfoundland, was called, and Rinkenberg was taken by the Frey Community Ambulance to Hahnemann Hospital, Scranton, with a deep laceration in his left forearm.

Last night the hospital said the retired miner from Tamaqua who has been in ill health for several years was in good condition after surgery.

525 Attend Opening Of Antique Show

THE 15th annual Pocono Mountains Antique Show and Sale opened yesterday with 525 persons in attendance.

Forty-one dealers, who make this the biggest show yet, will have their antique-laden tables set up until 10 p.m. Friday.

They have brought china, glass, furniture, jewelry and an assortment of other old things from their shops located all over Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

Setting for the show is the gym at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College.

One will find here a little of everything, from coins and arrowheads, to quilts, tin cookie cutters, half-century old toys and Dordflinger glass bowls.

Glass Predominates

There is very little, however, in the way of furniture, and silver. Glass predominates — in the form of early American pressed tumblers, colored water glasses and sundry bowls. Almost crowding these out are the trays upon trays of jewelry, most of it dating from the days when your grandmother was a girl.

There are some 50-year-old blown glass marbles with sulfide animal figures inside and a hurdy-gurdy with 12 tunes which children played all afternoon.

From the displays it appears the dealers favor their Mid-Victorian objects over other period-pieces. There were more curios here than what one would ordinarily think of in terms of "antiques."

At this 15th annual show the word "antiques" is used in a loose sense.

Dr. Jones To Head Group

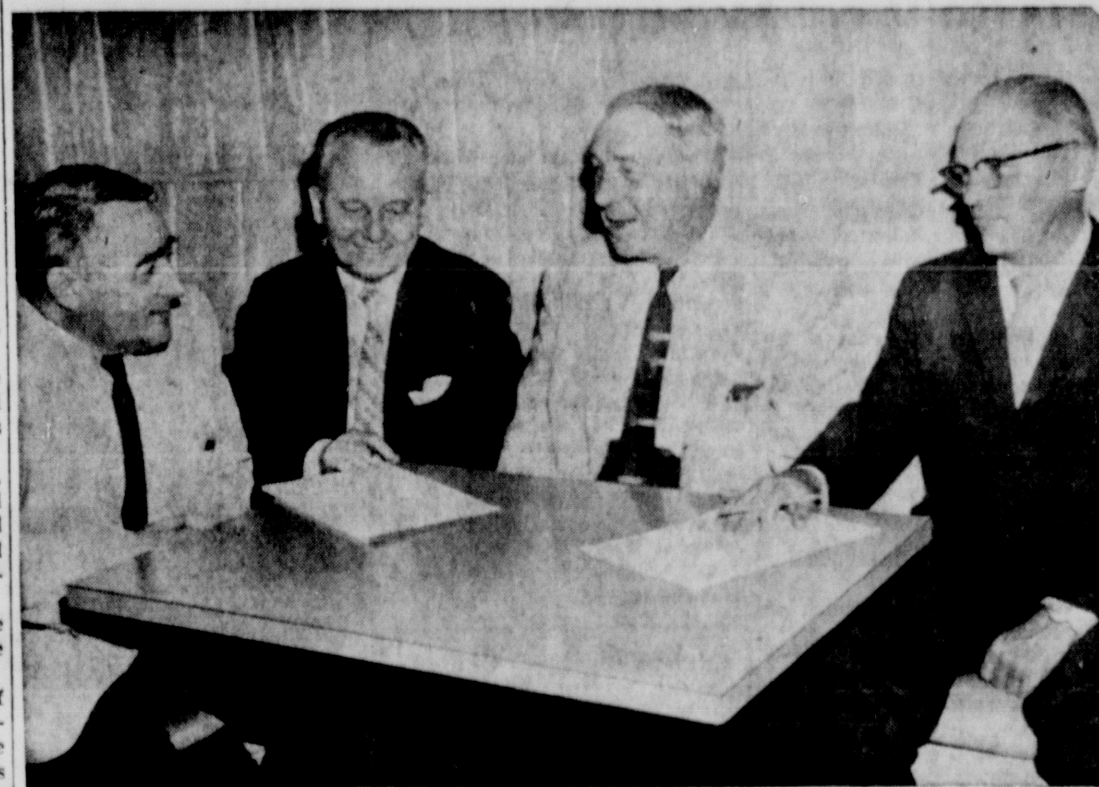

DR. R. FREDERICK Jones was reelected chairman of the East Stroudsburg Municipal Authority at a meeting last night.

City Planning

They include city planning and landscape architecture which deals with parks, swimming pools and play areas; local government financial reports to which all municipal sub-divisions except the three largest cities submit reports and which provides comparisons of costs of service in these units; bond approval which assures that proceedings are in order and borrowing is within legal limits, and research which answers questions of local government officials and prepares studies.

Dr. Hollister was introduced by Dr. Kurt Weimer, program chairman. Prior to the luncheon, Dr. Hollister spoke before one of Dr. Weimer's classes at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College.

Pentz, chairman of the law library committee, made one of the reports heard by the association at its bi-monthly meeting at Delaware Water Gap Country Club.

The Arbitration Committee reported that all forms necessary for arbitration hearings have been received.

Although no cases have yet been disposed of in this manner, President Harold Edwards said, a rule of court in Monroe County allows three lawyers sitting as arbitrators to settle any case involving $2,000 or less.

Members also discussed a clam bake for the last Wednesday in August.

PUC To Hold Hearing On Gravel Place Crossing

THE PENNSYLVANIA Public Utility Commission will hold a public hearing on the closing of the Gravel Place railroad crossing in Stroud Township, Montgomery Co. last night.

The crossing is located at the junction of route 90 and 196. Crowe, chairman of the committee appointed by the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce to oppose the closing, received the news in a letter from the commission.

No date, time or place has been announced to date. William P. Roan, commission secretary, said in the letter the commission will investigate the status of the crossing and set a hearing date.

Permission — Crowe said the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad was granted permission to close the crossing several years ago, but that bridge damage on other roads during the 1955 floods made necessary the use of the crossing by motorists.

The permission to close the crossing has never been rescinded, Crowe said, but recently the Stroud Township Planning Commission has designated the area as an industrial zone. An open crossing will be needed because of the future growth of the township, Crowe said.

The crossing originally was closed in 1945 under a PUC order but was reopened on an emergency basis following the 1955 floods and has been used since.

The Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce said in a letter to the PUC it understood DL&W planned to close the crossing again.

However, the chamber said it is now to be used actively to serve industrial plants locating in the area and urged the PUC to formally rescind the old crossing-closing directive.

The commission said it will issue a rule against DL&W to show why the 1945 directive should not be rescinded.

At the same time, the PUC advised the railroad not to close the crossing until it dispose of the rule.

Biggest Source Of Insurance Patronage In Pennsylvania Is Political Subdivision

EDITOR'S NOTE: Reporter Richard L. Graves of the Harrisburg AP staff tells how the state of Pennsylvania handles insurance premiums in a three-part series for morning newspapers. This is the final article.

By Richard L. Graves
HARRISBURG (AP) — The biggest source of insurance patronage in Pennsylvania is the political subdivision.

That's the opinion of state officials and insurance men who handle government protection.

The patronage stems from the commissions paid by the insurance companies on premiums paid by the government or any subdivision. The commission recipient is selected by political leaders.

"The whole municipality insurance problem out to be gone into," said one insurance man, who declined use of his name. "They spend more, far more, than the state."

"What has been done by the state government could be done by every municipality in the state that buys its insurance from private corporations," he added.

What did the state do? We appointed a broker of record who is in position to bring all of the insurance needs of the state into focus," said Andrew M. Bradley, secretary of property and supplies. His department handles nearly all state insurance.

"The broker is charged with the task of getting the best possible coverage with the lowest possible premiums," Bradley said.

The result: the commonwealth has cut its insurance premiums nearly in half. Coverage has been expanded. At the same time commissions—the political patronage—were reduced from 30 per cent of premiums to 15 per cent.

"There is no mystery about it," said Clayton A. Moul, the state's broker of record and a veteran insurance man. "It was a question of applying sound insurance practices on a professional basis."

There is nothing in the law, however, that says the state must continue "sound" insurance practices. The whole current system could go out the window tomorrow. The state could revert to its former system, or worse. There is no limit on how much insurance may be bought. Premiums would go up and so would patronage. Generally, municipalities do not have brokers of record assigned the task of getting the best possible insurance coverage, the state officials explained.

Initial Time
The Municipal Corporations Bureau has never bothered to collect insurance figures until this year. It is just starting its tabulation.

It is believed the costs of insurance in communities amount to a tremendous figure. Though elected officials are not allowed to do business with their own firms, if they are insurance men, the law is considered loose. There are ways to get around conflict-of-interest complaints.

The state carries insurance for auto liability; liquor store stock burglary; boiler, and bonding of state employees.

Here is how the state has pared costs in the past four years by pooling its insurance coverage in group plans, instead of purchasing by individual contract on each insured item:

Bonding—Formerly only 3.00 state employees were bonded, most for $10.00 and a few for more. Under the new system all state employees (about 60,000) are bonded for at least $10,000 and those directly handling funds are bonded in higher amounts, depending on their assignment. The former cost was $17,922 a year. The present cost is $5,197. The figures are averages.

Burglary—Liquor stores stocks formerly were insured by premiums costing $37,148 a year. The present cost is $16,533 annually.

Boilers—The state's boilers were previously insured for $20,811. The present cost is $14,514.

Auto liability—The contracts were drastically changed with a net reduction of 17 per cent per unit covered. The present premium is $39,333 a year. Formerly the coverage provided $5,000 for one person killed or injured and $10,000 for two persons with 9,200 cars covered. Presently, 11,500 vehicles are covered by $20,000-$40,000. The state is self-insurance on auto collision insurance.

'Diary Of Anne Frank' Opens At Ross Common

By Harlan Stone
ROSS COMMON — "The Diary of Anne Frank" is the story of eight people and their quarrels and eventual co-operation when they are forced to live together in an attic for over two years.

It is also the story of their hiding from enemy soldiers. The second story heightens the elements in the first story, or at least it should.

At times the Ross Common Players acted very well the Dutch Jews who show eventual understanding and compassion for one another's human faults. At such times the audience, too, could identify itself with the actors and feel compassion for the humans in this situation.

This was especially true when the Franks, Van Daans and Mr. Dussel all sit down around a candle-lit table to celebrate Hannukah, a festival of deliverance. The scene begins with Anne passing out her surprise gifts to everyone. There is laughing and rejoicing. But then the quarreling starts again—over a pet cat which Mr. Dussel is allergic to. But the scene ends with everyone singing the Hallelukah song.

The irritating faults these people have make them ring true as human beings. The visual stage image of them sitting around one table says more about the common destiny of man than any line they spoke.

This part of the play which tells of the tribulations of eight people living together was well done.

Esther Klein as Anne Frank is alternately exasperated, inquisitive, mocking and grown-up in a convincing manner. She shows how it feels to be cooped up with no opportunities to lead the normal life of a young teenager.

Most of her acting approaches the level she displayed when she has a nightmare and wakes up screaming. This is her best scene, when she asks her father to help her stop being cruel to her mother, the Van Daan's son Peter and the others who she thinks have been mean to her.

Her words here, delivered in a moving way, are a statement of the play's theme—that all men must be good, even the bad ones. She knows that she can be kind, even in her moments of hateful exasperation.

Miss Klein falls down only in her love scene with Peter, played by Gary Garth. Here she is too coy. But she is only a 15-year-old and as such she did a tremendous job. Richard Turmail as Mr. Dussel, the dentist who cannot stand a small girl's noisy ways, gave his best performance this Summer, and the others have been good. His interpretation of a weak, frightened old man behind a comic front had depth and intensity.

Bill Weston as Mr. Van Daan, who craves cigarettes, sells his wife's fur coat for more and steals food, was equally moving, especially when Van Daan becomes capable of confessing his selfishness. Weston has, however, a tendency to clomp around the stage a little too much.

Jean Evans, as Mrs. Van Daan, guest star Hilda Richards as Mrs. Frank, Gary Garth, as Peter, and Gary Greene as Margo Frank, all perform their parts with equal ability. But in the end all this good acting can not save the production from being somewhat of a failure.

In Harper's Magazine last winter Arthur Miller said the Broadway production of this play failed to make the most of its material. He thought that not only should the audience be made to identify itself with the people in the attic, but with the German soldiers who come to drag them off. Only then would the real universality of all men be revealed.

In his movie version Director George Stevens succeeded in doing this. The two German soldiers who search the building hear strange noises from the attic. They are hardly more than boys, and the noises frighten them. They are afraid of what they will find. When they hear a cat meow, they break into large smiles of relief.

At Ross Common, however, the Germans can hardly be said to even exist. When they march by the attic, several times the eight actors went about their business as though they had not heard.

They never stood really stock still after they heard noises in the offices below their hiding place. They were never really quiet when they walked around their attic in the daytime. There was no sense that the fear they might be found out any moment intensified their petty quarrels with one another. One whole part of the story seemed to be almost lacking.

First-night technical troubles with the lighting and noisy prop changing between the scenes also helped to destroy effectively any mood of suspense that had been created.

27,601 Feel Strike Pinch

HARRISBURG (AP) — The number of Pennsylvania workers idled as an indirect result of the steel strike rose by 9,840 last week to a total of 27,601, the Labor and Industry department reported Wednesday.

At the same time 1,200 more steel workers were laid off, bringing the Pennsylvania figure of unemployed steel workers to 147,800.

Among the workers in industries other than steel affected by the strike were 14,829 unemployed in the nonmanufacturing industries; and 9,668 railroad workers.

The department said these figures represented workers covered by state unemployment compensation, excepting the railroad workers. Most of the latter are covered through the Federal Railroad Unemployment Compensation Program.

The mining industry, with 11,075 idle, has the greatest number of unemployed outside of the steel industry.

The highest rise in unemployment last week was experienced by railroad workers, 5,550 of whom were idled from July 21-28.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Nothing was stirring in the newspaper office last night, not even the air. When the telephone shattered the silence, we jumped. Which is an indication of (1) how many people were at the softball game; or (2) at the Antique Show; or (3) sitting outside at home so glad to get their shoes and girdle off they didn't care about anything else.

Liveliest place in town yesterday afternoon was the Leisure Hour Club meeting. Well, maybe they weren't any livelier than the MORA Club but they were making more noise. Both groups had wonderful attendances—despite every excuse in the book to stay home and let the heat, the traffic and delirious dust settle where it would.

But there they were, and I felt sort of abashed talking about fashions when the women looked like such fashion plates themselves. They looked cool, calm and collected in their summer sheer prints with every hair just so.

We got in quite a discussion afterwards about skirt lengths. "How much do you think I should shorten this dress?" asked one pink-cheeked woman with a waistline a model might envy. After studying it I advised shortening it about a hem's length.

"Are you sure that wouldn't be too short for an old lady like me?" she asked a bit doubtfully. "You know I celebrated my 80th birthday a little while ago."

Well, more power to her, and I still don't think it's a bit too short. But women who

The Wyckoff Shopper

The "friendly store" A. J. Wyckoff STROUDSBURG, PA.

"Don't move," murmured a male voice, close to my ear. "This is a gun in your ribs."

I could feel the harsh dig of steel somewhere between my right shoulder and waistline, and for a moment I was startled. I am sure there must have been a peculiar expression on my face . . . for recently my life really had been threatened, and not as a joke either! I had almost forgotten the incident that had left me badly shaken for a few days. Then . . . in a lightning flash . . . it occurred to me that this just had to be a prank. After all, I was standing right in the center aisle at Wyckoff's, just one of a large crowd of people watching a demonstration by our Mayan Indian Weavers from Guatemala—and people don't walk up to you in a busy store like ours and poke guns into your midriff.

I turned, and looked into the face of our display manager, Fran Meredith. "You didn't believe I had a gun, did you?" he said, brandishing one under my nose. "I only wish I owned it," he added. "This is a beauty . . . a real beauty!"

It was real all right . . . and beautiful too, just as he said. Even I, who hate guns, had to admit that. What's more it was old . . . about 100 years, I would guess, and is from the collection now on display at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College. A six-shooter of silver and gold, elaborately engraved, this had ivory handles, and is worth about $50.00.

"This would be a neat gadget for a game of Russian roulette," I quipped. "How about it?" Fran was lost in admiration of the shiny thing. "Just feel its weight," he urged. "Can't you imagine why a man would feel ten feet tall with this in his holster?"

"Ye—," I began to say, taking the gun from him . . . but I changed my mind. "Gosh, no," I amended. "This thing weighs a ton. I don't see how anything less than a TWELVE foot man could ever raise it to aim."

I ran my fingertips over the lacy, pretty designs, and returned the gun to Fran who showed me how to load it. I was happy he had no bullets . . . something about the very thought sends me into a frenzy.

"Is it going to be in our window?" I asked. "Yes . . . we're putting in an Antiques Window to remind everyone of the show."

A very nice gesture, I think . . . and our way, here at Wyckoff's, of reminding you that this 4-day event benefits our Monroe County General Hospital. I'm glad Fran showed me the gun . . . it was well worth seeing, and most men will appreciate its power as well as magnificent workmanship. But me . . . well, when I go to an antique show, I'm not looking for guns. I'm looking for lace fans . . . milk glass . . . pewter . . . and china slippers. Maybe that's being feminine, though this is hardly the entire reason. The REAL reason, I guess, is that I'm chicken . . . as chicken as a hundred year old Staffordshire setting hen. After all, it's the safest way I know of realizing my personal ambition to someday BE an antique!

Friendship Visit To German City

When Paul Abel, of Stroudsburg RD 3 and Hackensack, N. J., goes to Passau, Germany, on a Friendship visit he will be carrying on a family as well as a community tradition.

The cities of Passau and Hackensack have been Friendship Cities since 1952 when they requested the Commander of the Occupation Forces there to find a city for them in his home state of New Jersey with whom they could exchange information and visitors.

Passau, in the Western Zone of Germany, on the Danube river near both the Czechoslovakian and Austrian borders, is about the same size as Hackensack which is also on a river. There the similarity ends. But not the exchange of ideas and residents.

Over the years there has been a two-way traffic of both. Mr. Abel's mother, Bessie Abel, was one of the visitors from Hackensack. Through this exchange, Passau has newly organized a Rotary Club, Mr. Abel, vice president of the Hackensack Rotary, will thus be representing the Rotary as well as the Friendship Group which sponsors this friendship between cities here and abroad.

He will spend a week in Passau with a view to becoming acquainted with the people of Passau rather than the officials.

Fashions Explained To Leisure Hour

Some 30 members of the Leisure Hour Club met yesterday afternoon at the YMCA with four guests joining members for the meeting at which Bobby Westbrook of The Daily Record shared her experiences at the fashion showings of the N. Y. Couture Group this month.

In addition to sketching new fashion trends, illustrated with pictures for both men and women, Mrs. Westbrook also described some of the extra-curricular activities of her week in New York including visits to Governor's Island, a Tibetan monastery on Staten Island, plays and night club entertainment, and showed some of the favors she had received.

During the business meeting, it was announced that the picnic, postponed by bad weather, with MORA Club would be held at the next meeting, August 12, with the same committees functioning.

After the meeting, the members joined men of MORA club for refreshments served at tables decorated with late Summer flowers.

Summer Apples Are Ready And Here Are Some Reminders On How To Use Them

By Margaret MacLaren

Apples have a certain allure! They stimulate a good cook to bake up something special in the way of desserts. The aroma of a freshly baked pie sends you sailing in to supper . . . and the thoughts of applesauce with ice cream tempt the tots to stay longer at the table. It's the taste—most everyone likes apples.

This, in part, accounts for the fact that apples are the nation's and the world's largest fruit crop. In recent years the United States has produced enough for every man, woman and child to have a bushel or 150 apples each year. The 1959 forecast says there'll be about 2 million pounds more than last year. Each year summer apples officially open the season. This small segment of the total apple crop is now being marketed. And it, too, is in heavier supply than last year.

Tagged For Tartness—Summer apples are tart, juicy and quick cooking. They are especially good for sauce and pies.

There are several summer varieties but the most common ones you'll see on Pennsylvania markets through August are:

Yellow Transparent—Light green in color, rather small in size—excellent for pies and sauce . . . preferred by many for sauce to freeze.

Summer Rambo—green and tart, too. This is an apple that is flat in shape and usually quite large in size . . . excellent for general cooking.

William Early Red—a pale yellow-green skin with bright red stripes . . . medium sized . . . it is similar in shape to the Delicious. Its mild flavor makes it an early eating apple and one too mild for most tastes for cooking.

Getting Your Money's Worth—Buy with quality in mind. Top quality may cost you a cent or more per pound but actually will give you more usable portion because there's less waste.

Top quality apples are firm and well shaped; are free from bruises, blemishes and soft spots; have good color for the variety. If background color is almost yellow the fruit is over-ripe and lacks juiciness.

These early comers do not store as well as the fall varieties. They should be refrigerated if you plan to keep them.

"TIME AND TIDE"—wait for no man. It takes time to give your good clothes personal attention. Keiper's Laundry and Dry Cleaners have the skilled employees and modern equipment to give you a good job. Call Keiper's HA 1-1820 today. S. 9th near Main. (adv.)

for any length of time. It's wise to store small quantities in plastic bags to prevent loss of moisture.

How many—and for what: 3 medium equals 1 pound; 4 small equals 1 pound; 1 bushel equals 42 pounds.

Allow 6 to 8 medium for a 9-inch pie or 3 cups of sauce.

To Keep Color and Flavor—Peel just before using. Sprinkle with lemon juice or use ascorbic acid to prevent discoloration if cut fruit is to stand.

Cook in covered pan. Add a small amount of water and simmer gently for a short time. Use sugar sparingly—just enough to bring out flavor. If it's added at the beginning apples hold shape better. For sauce, add sugar near the end of cooking.

Before summer apples are gone—try some of the nationally known and possibly your favorites, too. Here's a list to remind you to serve:

Apple crisp with grated sharp cheese.

Dutch apple cobbler with whipped cream.

Freshly baked apple pie with ice cream.

Or a spicy apple sauce cake.

Or maybe a new flare to sauce.

Spoon hot spicy applesauce over pancakes and serve with sausage.

Add crushed peppermint sticks to applesauce. Let stand till it turns a blushing pink—then serve on vanilla ice cream.

Add a dab of sour cream to chilled sauce.

Mix apple sauce with horse radish to serve with pork or color green and add mint flavoring to serve with lamb.

Food Marketing Trends

Consumers can expect to pay slightly less for many meat items this week end as wholesale prices declined almost across the board. Fresh pork becomes the clear cut red meat value as prices slid 6 to 10 cents a pound under a week ago levels. Processed lines hold steady. With a bigger than normal crop of porkers prices will go lower as the marketing season is just getting under way. Bee values in pork will be found in rib, loin, and Boston roasts, bacon and ham. Cheaper pork coupled with heavy beef production is being an influence on other meat prices too, including poultry meats. Beef prices are a

OFF THE RECORD

By Bob Clark
Sports Editor

Who is Ray Davies? Well practically everyone knows him now as manager of the Stroudsburg Little League All-Stars which powered its way to the finals of District 20 runoffs Tuesday night.

People in LL circles are also familiar with Davies because of his almost consistent guiding of the Veteran of Foreign Wars nine to the championship of the Stroudsburg circuit.

Just for the records, Ray led the Vets to the league crown in 1956 and again in 1958. This year his team won the first half and are in first place in the second half chase.

Also Davies is known as the man who led Twin City TV to their second straight championship in the East Penn Softball League and as the guy behind the reins guiding Tobyhanna toward the title of the Monroe Softball League.

But it is his present status at the helm of the Little Leaguers which has brought Davies more popularity than any of his other ventures. It seems that folks like the little tikes and also their guiding hands on the ball field.

Over the years Davies has proved more than his mettle as a molder of winners. Even when he was at college—East Stroudsburg Teachers—Ray was an inspiration to the soccer squads of Howard DeNike that put them in the triumphant class instead of just another team category.

While tomorrow night another obstacle will be in the way of his charges, Davies past records indicate that it will take a good nine to bring the locals down to earth.

Certainly the Stroudsburg community is indebted to Davies and his assistant Glen Bisbing Sr. This pair has given the area this year something to look up at—a Northern Area Little League championship pennant.

Perhaps it would be all right if we said, "Hats off to Ray Davies and all the Little League managers in the Stroudsburg League for producing such a fine representative team in the Keystone playoffs."

No matter what the final outcome reveals, Stroudsburg Little League's All-Stars have made a niche in teeny-weeny ball history. May the plaudits of all ring in their ears in years to come.

Speaking of Little League ball, the winner of the Stroudsburg and Quakertown-Lehigh victor game for the District 20 title will take on St. Clair, District 24 kings, at St. Clair, Aug. 4 at 6 p. m.

Quick Pickups—Jack Newell, former Stroudsburg High and East Stroudsburg State Teachers College star athlete, was named head coach of wrestling and track at Shull Junior High in Easton. Newell, a teacher at Shull, will receive $400 for coaching the Shull matboys and thinclads.

East Stroudsburg State Teachers College varsity football team, will come down off the hill next fall for two all-night contests. Director of Athletics Dr. George Ockerhausen announced.

Saturday, Sept. 26 the Warrior gridmen will host Ithaca College at Gordon Giffels field, Stroudsburg, and on Oct. 10, also a Saturday, ESSC will entertain West Chester at East Stroudsburg High's Memorial Stadium. Both games start at 8 p. m.

'Old' Majors To Support New Circuit

WASHINGTON (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford C. Frick Wednesday pledged full support of present major leagues for those building a third bigtime circuit.

Sen. John Carroll (D-Colo.) told Frick, in effect, it better be that way or Congress may step in.

Discussion of the projected third league—the Continental—arose while Frick was testifying before the Senate Antitrust subcommittee.

The Senate group is studying bills that would clarify the status of pro baseball, football, basketball and hockey under the antitrust laws.

The baseball commissioner supported a measure that would exempt such pro practices as the player draft and contract reserve clauses from the antitrust laws.

Under the bill, the strictly commercial aspects of the sports would be subject to those laws.

Frick told the senators he wants to see formation of a third big league, but he cautioned it will "not be simple and not be easy."

As evidence that the National and American leagues want to help, Frick mentioned a meeting set for Aug. 18 at which he said founders of the Continental League and a seven-man committee from the National and American leagues will talk over all problems openly and fully.

Frick called this meeting an honest endeavor to help the new league get off the ground.

Inadvisable

Carroll broke in to say he would consider it most inadvisable for the 16 American and National league clubs to block formation of a third league. The Colorado senator said that if any barriers were thrown up by the two existing major leagues, Congress would be forced to act.

Frick asked that baseball be left to work out the problem itself, without interference from Congress.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) voiced curiosity as to where the new league would get its players.

Frick said the new league would enter organized baseball with all the development rights available to existing clubs.

"They will acquire draft rights, rights of waivers, rights to negotiate, rights to trade and purchase contracts, rights to have working agreements with minor league clubs," Frick said.

Pastrano, Flanagan Sink To Low Ring Rating Spots

NEW YORK (AP)—Two fighters who long have been prominent in their respective divisions are virtually clinging by their teeth to places in the top 10 in the monthly Ring Magazine ratings.

Willie Pastrano, the Miami dancing master, is No. 10 among the heavyweights, dropped to that low spot by a defeat at the hands of Alonzo Johnson of Pittsburgh.

Del Flanagan of St. Paul, a leading welterweight figure, sank from sixth to 10th in that class, with Duilio Loi of Italy taking his No. 6 spot.

The label of "fighter of the month" is awarded Harold Gomes of Providence, R.I., for his feat of coming off the floor four times to win the decision over Paul Jorgensen of Port Arthur, Tex.

Henry Cooper of England has been dropped from third to fifth in the heavyweight class because of inactivity, and Sonny Liston of Philadelphia and Eddie Machen of Redding, Calif., each moves up a notch in that division to third and fourth, respectively.

The middleweight rankings remained unchanged, and there were only two changes in the mid-weight class, where Nat Fleischer still rates Ray Robinson as champion. Inactive Gene Armstrong of Elizabeth, N.J., dropped from ninth to 10th, and Ralph Jones of Yonkers, N.Y., changed places with him.

Denny Moyer of Portland, Ore., dropped from second to fourth among the welters as a result of his defeat at the hands of champion Don Jordan in a title fight.

Among them are Art Wall, the year's leading money winner; Billy Casper, the National Open champion and Sam Snead; Dow Finsterwald, Arnold Palmer, Cary Middlecoff, Mike Souchak and Ken Venturi.

KING Eddie Feigner, pitching blindfolded and from second base in the late innings, fell prey to Twin City TV last night as the nine-man Videoman edged the King and His Court, 4-3, before 2,500 at East Stroudsburg Memorial Stadium.

The four-man softball team, with Feigner the key man, saw their lack of outfielders turn against them as Twin City, led by Harold Strunk's two triples, put over a run in the sixth inning to break a 3-3 tie.

Feigner lived up to advance billing with behind-the-back, and between-the-legs hurling. All told he whiffed 11 Tvers (two blindfolded and one from second base).

A homer by winning pitcher Joe Drach was the deciding blow in the sixth. Drach who came on for Starter Stan Tchorz in the fifth. He hurled runless ball the rest of the way.

However, it was all Feigner during the game and after when his outfit put on a Shadow Ball exhibition.

Six Hits Each
Each side got six hits with Strunk's two three-baggers plying Twin City and catcher Meade Kinzer leading the Court with three safeties. Jerry Jones, the Court's self-tagged Sultan of the Swat hit a triple and single, while Pete Cooper, a newcomer with the cast, bombed a home run for the visitors.

Twin City came up with several spectacular plays, especially by shortstop Gene Cioffi and catcher Dick Pennington to nip Court runners at the plate.

Twin City, the State's Class A softball champions, had their troubles with Feigner but once in awhile Eddie outfoxed himself and the Video batters hit his "cripple" pitcher.

Feigner, who calls himself the fastest pitcher in softball, beared down on several occasions. But at many intervals he would bring in screwy and illegal pitches which kept the full packer house laughing or lauding his mound work.

His after game exhibition also included various pitches from the softball was started to the present windup-type hurlers.

Corps Performs
Prior to the game the Thomas Lambert Veteran Of Foreign Wars Drum and Bugle Corps put on an exhibition. The Stroudsburg unit, formed only last January, recently won third place in the Four-County Firemen's Convention parade at Hometown.

Oriole Kid Pitchers Stop Tiger Batters For 5-1 Win

DETROIT (AP)—Jerry Walker and Milt Pappas, Baltimore's kid pitching sensations, throttled the Detroit Tigers with a six-hitter Wednesday and the Orioles captured a 5-1 decision.

Walker had a two-hitter going into the seventh inning but wilted in muggy heat and Pappas came on and preserved Walker's eighth triumph against five defeats.

The Tigers spoiled the Walker-Pappas shutout bid in the seventh when Steve Demeter hit a run-producing double in his first major league at-bat. He played third base the last two innings and veteran Eddie Yost switched to second for the first time in his long career.

Demeter reported Tuesday from the Tigers' farm club at Charleston, W. Va., in the American Assn. His double routed Walker and Pappas pitched two-hit ball the rest of the way.

The Orioles won with the help of a couple of gift runs. They scored twice in the first and one of the runs was unearned because of an error by shortstop Cool Veal on a double-play grounder. Veal also bobbled Brooks Robinson's lead-off bouncer in the second and the Orioles tallied an unearned run.

Daley Sidelined

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Bud Daley, ace of the Kansas City mound staff with an 11-6 record, was sidelined Wednesday by an infected knee. Coach Bob Swift said that the southpaw knuckleballer who was scheduled to start Wednesday night against Washington will be replaced by John Taitouris. The A's will be shooting for their 10th consecutive victory.

Ladies Net Queen

HAVESFORD, Pa. (AP)—South African champion Sandra Reynolds rallied after losing the first set to defeat her countrywoman, Rene Schppman, 1-6, 6-1, 6-4 in the first all-foreign women's final round match in the 60-year history of the Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis Championship.

Althea Gibson May Turn Pro As Foe Of Kramer Tour

NEW YORK (AP)—Althea Gibson may turn professional in the fall to head an all-women's tennis tour operating in competition with Jack Kramer's famous cast.

"Everything is in an 'if' stage at the moment but the tennis tour idea still is very much in the picture," the two-time Wimbledon champion said Wednesday after being honored as the 1958 woman athlete of the year.

"The present thinking is for a lineup of four women players. They would not be established professionals but would be girls picked from the present amateur ranks."

Althea declined to identify the possibilities but her longtime advisor, Sydney Llewellyn, said Britain's towering Christine Truman was a candidate as well as American stars Beverly Fleitz and Darlene Hard.

Miss Gibson was presented the Babe Didrikson Zaharias Trophy in an informal ceremony. Ted Smits, sports editor of The Associated Press, made the presentation in behalf of the sports writers and broadcasters who named Althea in the annual AP poll. It was the second straight year the Harlem girl had won the trophy.

Stocks Seek New Marks At Nazareth

NAZARETH — Pennsylvania and New Jersey strictly stock car races — the rave at the half-mile track at Nazareth, Pa., Fairgrounds this season — will be back on Thursday night, 8:30 p.m., to shoot for new records on the Nazareth track.

The stock car skippers—with headliners including three Leighton boys, Luther Maffley, Bupsie Arner and Bobby Bottcher—have been sizzling around the banked turns and occasionally have been plowing through the fences in exciting flipovers.

Chief wizards challenging the Leighton trio are Don Hughes, Flemington, N.J.; Herb Frenchko, Easton; George Dilworth, North Wales, and two score of pilots from various towns and hamlets in the two states.

The strictly stocks, which turn the half-mile in a shade less than 30 seconds, are far advanced with recent experiences at Nazareth. They are no longer novice drivers, rather they are occasionally taking part in the Sunday night modified-sportsman divisions.

This Thursday every adult will be permitted to bring one child (15 and under) free to the races.

In the hectic battle for the 20-lap checkered flags the driving of Arner — No. 18 — has been outstanding. He has always started at the rear of the field and has weaved his way through the pack in a few laps to set a blistering pace.

Also driving with great skill has been Luther Maffley — No. 79 — who has given Arner his most severe worries in recent races. In fact, only last Sunday Maffley beat the famous Arner in a brilliant battle against time and fate.

Jap Swimmer Sets New Mark

KURE, Japan (AP) — Tsuyoshi Yamamaka, Japan's speedy middle and long distance swimmer, shattered the world record for the 800 meter freestyle Wednesday for the second time within eight days.

Competing in a dual meet with a hand-picked United States team, Yamamaka clocked 9 minutes, 13.3 seconds in the Kure City High School pool. This clipped 1.2 seconds off the 9:14.5 mark set by Jon Konrads of Australia last year.

Konrads, however, has an unacknowledged record of 8:59.6 made earlier this year.

Yamamaka also swam the 800 meters faster in the Tokyo meet against the visiting U.S. team earlier when he clocked 9:08.7.

Ricketts Farmed Out

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis pitcher Dick Ricketts, who won one and lost six for the Redbirds this season, is on his way to Rochester in the triple A International League. The Cards called up Bob Gibson from Omaha, Neb., in the triple A American Assn. to replace him.

Parents Of Veterans May Gain Aid

NEEDY parents of veterans who died of service-connected disabilities may be eligible for compensation though they were not dependent upon their son at the time of his death.

The announcement was made by A. G. Palmer, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Wilkes-Barre in response to numerous inquiries.

He said indigent parents may be awarded monthly compensation payments even though the veteran's widow and dependent children are receiving VA benefits as a result of his death.

Complete information can be obtained from the VA office at 19 North Main Street in Wilkes-Barre.

Change In Theme

Polyethylene Plastic Used To Hasten Decay In Compost

PLASTIC FOR COMPOST—Two years ago we decided to use the polyethylene plastic film for hastening decay in the compost pile. The results were striking and I'd like to pass along our method to folks interested in composting. You make the compost pile in the regular manner — alternating layers of leaves, clippings, soil, etc., with lime and plant foods added.

The pile is watered down and then a sheet of black polyethylene is spread over the pile. Use a piece large enough to allow about 18 to 20 inches flap on each side. Cover the ground flaps with soil, so that the pile is completely enveloped.

The beauty of the plastic is that you no longer have to fork or turn over the compost. Simply leave it alone for about eight months—say until next Spring, when it'll be in fine shape for the garden or flower border. The black polyethylene allows gases to filter thru, but traps the moisture inside, preventing drying out.

A moist pile will decay much faster than a dry one. Our compost pile did not stagnate under the plastic. It decomposed faster due to heat of sun being trapped beneath the black sheet. Flies and redwings are no problem.

The plastic sheets comes in various thicknesses, is inexpensive and will last two or more years if you handle them with care. If your soil is sandy or clayey and you want to improve on it, make yourself a quick compost pile. You can build usable compost in eight months, using the plastic sheets.

A Good Foliage Plant—The common Peperomia has been a faithful standby for years, but for home owners who want a new look at an old plant, try the new peperomia called Little Fantasy. It has deeply pleated foliage, more or less heart-shaped. Culture is simple enough.

This item likes a rich, loose soil, uniformly moist, and it does best out of direct sun, preferring a bright window. You can start new plants by sticking the leaf stems in sand or soil, or plain water.

"Pre-Planted" Seeds—Home owners who bought the so-called "preplanted" seeds in aluminum trays tell us their seedlings turn yellow. I never thought too much of the pre-planted containers or the "miracle flower mists" which are supposed to give you a garden of colors.

There's no substitute for the old-fashioned way of starting and growing plants from seeds sown in flats or open soil and transplanted. It's more economical, more fun and more practical than growing seeds in an aluminum dish or a blanket of cotton.

The plastic sheets comes in various thicknesses, is inexpensive and will last two or

Question Box

F. J. of Stroudsburg: "Our tomatoes are doing fine except that the fruit has a black rot on the bottom, even tho the plants are staked. What causes this? Also, some of our plants have turned yellow, wilted and are dying. We've never had trouble before."

You probably have a combination of two diseases: (1) Blossom end rot and fusarium wilt, two common maladies on tomatoes. Blossom end rot is a physiological disease, caused by an uneven supply of moisture in the soil. Dry periods are responsible for the trouble, and damage to the tomato can occur early in the development of the berry, but not show up until the fruit has reached full size.

The end often goes unnoticed until the tomato is harvested because the blossom end of the tomato faces downward. Advanced stages of the blossom end rot may show a black mold over the surface of the rot, or a soft decay of the entire tomato. Actually, these are secondary fungus organisms which invade the dead tissue.

There is no control chemical for this. Usually, 1/4 inch of rain or water a week until the first blossom cluster has set fruit is helpful. From then on the amount needs to be increased slowly until about 1 inch of water is applied at the time the tomatoes are about the size of a golf ball. Mulched tomatoes are less susceptible to blossom end rot than are staked tomatoes.

Fusarium wilt causes the lower leaves to turn yellow and die. A sure identification is to cut into the stem 3 or 4 inches above the ground and see if the vascular tissue just under the skin is brown or black. If it is, fusarium wilt is the trouble.

Control: None, although you can use varieties that have some resistance, such as Marglobe, Rutgers, and Stokeseale. Fusarium is a fungus disease of the soil, where it will remain for 20 years or more, even if you don't raise tomatoes during that time. So the only remedy is to grow resistant varieties and move the tomatoes to a new location.

D. G. of California: "We installed some outdoor lights in our backyard. Now I'm told they'll attract night-flying insects. Is that true?" Trees and shrubs near outdoor lights will attract nocturnal pests.

Spray your plants in floodlit areas, using malathion or arsenate of lead. Repeat the application two or three times during the summer. Malathion or DDT will help keep down mosquitoes if sprayed on shrubbery.

Relief Total
$432,530
In County

(Record Harrisburg Bureau)
HARRISBURG — A total of $432,530 was expended on Monroe County residents relief during the past year — an increase of $59,863 over the preceding year — the State Department of Public Welfare revealed today.

In its just completed analysis of the relief picture throughout the state for the 12-month period, the department said that of this total expenditure for Monroe County, $74,038 was spent for administration of the program in the county and what it termed "miscellaneous assistance and services".

The average monthly load of Monroe County residents drawing relief stood at 858 for the year, representing an average of 2.2 per cent of the county population.

Breakdown

A breakdown of the overall cost figure for the county shows that on a county per capita basis Monroe County relief costs for the year amounted to $10.89, of which amount $6.03 was in state funds and $4.86 in federal matching funds.

A split-up of relief costs within the county showed that during the year the average monthly payment for aid to dependent children amounted to $27.12 per person; old age assistance, $44.67, and general assistance, $28.32 per person.

State Court Rules Against Peace Justice

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pennsylvania's Supreme Court Wednesday ordered a Bucks County justice of the peace to stop arresting and fining persons who work on Sunday pending determination of the legality of his actions.

Chief Justice Charles Alvin Jones acted against Earl B. Dougherty, Bristol Township JP. A prohibition writ accused the county squire with "acting erroneously under the law." Justice Jones ordered a hearing Aug. 17.

Dougherty has made 225 on-arrests of persons he found working on Sunday in alleged violation of Pennsylvania's Sunday Blue Laws.

These included toll collectors for the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, newsstand operators, a stage actress, and maintenance employees in industrial plants. Many persons have paid $4 fines and $9 court costs.

Study Law

The chief justice acted as Atty. Gen. Anne X. Alpern, the Bucks County district attorney and other state officials studied the law to determine whether Dougherty could do what he was doing.

Dougherty said a 1794 state law forbids any "worldly employment" on Sunday, the Christian Sabbath. He said he was determined to prove how "ludicrous" the statute was. These are known generally as the "Blue Laws."

Norvin Nathan, an attorney with offices in Levittown and Philadelphia, filed the writ with the state's highest tribunal.

The JP handed a similar notice to actress Peggy Cass, who was starring in the playhouse production of "Born Yesterday."

Miss Cass, appearing on a nationwide television show last night, announced she wouldn't pay the fine or the costs. She told Jack Paar, the TV host, she would exile herself from Pennsylvania rather than spend six days in jail, the alternative to the fine. Paar wrote "null and void" over the conviction notice.
